Among other questions which will be presented to the Committee will be the calling of a convention to nominate a candidate for Congress for Three Magistrates of Greenville at that district, and selecting an Elector on the Greeley and Brown ticket. The question, "Shall there be a convention II. V. In that district there are four prominent candidates for Congress, each full of hope and sanguine of success; and either would make an efficient and worthy representative. It is not our purpose to take part as between these distinguished men. We only look to the good of the party.

Sand. It was a mistake, perhaps, that Johnson settled in Greenville after he came down from the Presidency. there is any foundation for the talk or only look to the good of the party, and are well assured that either of them would bear our banner proudly, ably and worthily. But who shall have that honor? This is the question that must be settled by the people. How can they do this? The best known means is a convention and a nomination. The Democratic majority in the district is large, and friends of each of the rival candidates, filled with enthusiasm, may believe that there is no danger of a Radical's triumph, and hence no necessity for a convention. It is true, too, that no Radical has, as yet, been announced as a candidate in the district. All these facts signify nothing. With the thorough organization of their party which they possess, it is only necessary for A. A. Freeman or some other Radical to announce himself one week before the election, and his success will be all.

in which the Democrats have a majority of eight or ten thousand. This is doubtless their policy. They have been of the aspirants, flattering each with assurances of Radical support.

Conventions have their evils, and generally the defeated aspirants and their friends denounce them as frauds, and always "packed" against them. But this is the best system of which we know anything, and it is wiser to endure the evils attending them than suffer.

The party cannot afford to have a Radical elected to Congress in that district, and for the committee to fall to call a convention would, under the circumstances, be almost a criminal neglect of duty. In this connection we would state that we have been shown a letter from the Chairman of the State Executive Committee, in which he advises the holding of conventions in all cases where there is any possible danger. He says we must have harmony, and this cannot be had where we have a number of zival aspirants, all belonging to our party. His suggestions dure the evils attending them than softer C. Harne.
